

---

Contents

---

Foreword . . . . .	ix
Chapter 1. Identity as an Issue of Constraint and Recognition: a Question of Fundamental Ethics . . . . .	1
Pierre-Antoine CHARDEL
1.1. Introduction . . . . .	1
1.2. Digital ethics in context . . . . .	2
1.3. Identification, corporality and recognition issues . . . . .	6
1.4. Digital metamorphosis, subjectivation and liquid societies . . . . .	9
1.5. Narrative identities and self-expressions . . . . .	11
1.6. Identity as an ethical issue. . . . .	14
1.7. Traceability and fetishism of form . . . . .	18
Chapter 2. Digital Regimes of Identity Management: from the Exercise of Privacy to Modulation of the Self . . . . .	23
Armen KHATCHATOUROV
2.1. Introduction . . . . .	23
2.2. From identity to digital identity: historical and conceptual elements . . . . .	28
2.2.1. Historical premises . . . . .	28
2.2.2. About identification . . . . .	33
2.2.3. Contemporary liquidity . . . . .	38
2.2.4. Implementation of the approach: from narrative to writing . . . . .	41

2.3. The digital and the appropriation of meaning . . . . .	45
2.3.1. Digital transformation of meaning . . . . .	45
2.3.2. Digital technology and the construction of identity: first elements . . . . .	48
2.4. Transformations of existential territories . . . . .	50
2.4.1. The relationship with the state and institutions. . . . .	50
2.4.2. The relationship with market services . . . . .	54
2.4.3. Social relations and production of the self . . . . .	60
2.4.4. Sketch of the articulation between existential territories . . . . .	64
2.5. From autonomy to modulated identity . . . . .	66
2.5.1. The inadequacy of the concept of autonomy . . . . .	66
2.5.2. Historical perspective: discipline and control . . . . .	67
2.5.3. Sketch of a typology of data production and control . . . . .	75
2.5.4. Big Data as a minimum of control and initiative (exemplary case 1) . . . . .	77
2.5.5. Quantified Self as maximum of control and initiative (exemplary case 2) . . . . .	96
2.5.6. The illusion of control: cross-domain aspects . . . . .	104
2.5.7. The four trends at work in identities . . . . .	109
2.6. Conclusion: privacy in question in the digital transformation. . . . .	113
2.6.1. The social value of privacy . . . . .	114
2.6.2. Modulated identity and its private life. . . . .	120
Chapter 3. Individuals, Normativity and Urban Spaces: Critical Perspectives on Digital Governance . . . . .	127
Gabriel PÉRIÈS
3.1. Introduction. . . . .	127
3.2. Identity-identification as a social fact: the systemic construction of digital identity . . . . .	132
3.2.1. Identity and identification . . . . .	132
3.2.2. From algorithmic rationality to the human body. . . . .	133
3.2.3. The e-individual: between systemic analysis and redefinition of the social field . . . . .	136
3.3. e-Identity under construction in the smart city space . . . . .	141
3.3.1. The smart city and the state . . . . .	141
3.3.2. The interactive city and its actors . . . . .	142
3.3.3. Some structuring elements of governance of the smart city. . . . .	148
3.4. Conclusion: identified citizen participation . . . . .	152

Chapter 4. Wait a minute, dystopia has not arrived yet? – Digital Identities and the Ability to Act Collectively, an Interview with Andrew Feenberg . . . . .	155
Andrew FEENBERG, Armen KHATCHATOUROV and Pierre-Antoine CHARDEL
References . . . . .	177
List of Authors . . . . .	195
Index . . . . .	197