

---

Contents

---

Foreword . . . . .	ix
Acknowledgements . . . . .	xiii
Introduction . . . . .	xv
Part 1. Adapting the Media Model . . . . .	1
Introduction to Part 1 . . . . .	3
Chapter 1. Legitimacy and Foundations of Authority Through Media Appropriation . . . . .	5
1.1. Speaking out: power . . . . .	5
1.2. The porosity of the boundary between advertising and journalism: a tradition . . . . .	8
1.3. The media and advertising thought process . . . . .	13
Chapter 2. The Media Opportunism of Brands and Its Silences . . . . .	15
2.1. Virtues of inscription-embodiment material and editorial design . . . . .	15
2.2. Media design . . . . .	18
2.3. A media ideal, engagement and circulation . . . . .	19
2.4. The journalist: the guarantor, a contemporary hero of public speech . . . . .	23
2.5. A social power . . . . .	25

Chapter 3. A Media of One's Own: Brands and the Struggle for Auctoriality . . . . .	27
3.1. The rise of native advertising . . . . .	27
3.2. Engagement and defection in advertising methods. . . . .	29
3.3. The Internet and the regeneration of a common concept . . . . .	31
3.4. The auctoriality in question . . . . .	32
3.5. Auctoriality of brands and journalistic claims. . . . .	33
Chapter 4. Changes in the Media Landscape and Transfers of Authority . . . . .	37
4.1. Procedures for exploiting journalists . . . . .	37
4.2. New categorizations. . . . .	38
4.3. Pre-eminence of the channel and media changes . . . . .	41
4.4. Media and reciprocal configurations . . . . .	46
Conclusion to Part 1 . . . . .	49
Part 2. Asserting Intellectual Authority through Knowledge Mediation . . . . .	53
Introduction to Part 2. . . . . .	55
Chapter 5. Metaphor of the Consumer-Learner and Branded Ethos: Representations in the Commercial Environment . . . . .	59
5.1. From learning to education, a leitmotif of marketing . . . . .	59
5.2. The manufacture of a brand ethos. . . . .	64
Chapter 6. Virtues and Modalities of Ordinary Subordination in the Commercial Environment . . . . .	69
6.1. Educating the consumer . . . . .	69
6.2. Modalities of didactic impressiveness: from prescription to solicitude . . . . .	73
Chapter 7. The Institutionalized Didactic Position: The Masterly Hold . . . . .	79
7.1. Institutionalization of knowledge mobilized for brands. . . . .	80
7.2. The "missions" of educational kits . . . . .	83

Chapter 8. The Temptations of Scientific Mediation . . . . .	91
8.1. Scientific mediation and expertise: a construction of authorities in the public space . . . . .	91
8.2. Figurations and partnership instrumentalization . . . . .	94
8.3. The missions of the Danone Institute . . . . .	100
Conclusion to Part 2 . . . . .	107
Part 3. Investing Social Memory Through Cultural Mediation . . . . .	111
Introduction to Part 3 . . . . .	113
Chapter 9. Cultural Mediation: Regulating the Circulation of Knowledge in the Public Space . . . . .	117
9.1. The “cultural being” that has become a communicative object: mediation through ranking . . . . .	118
9.2. Cultural mediation: creating interpretations for the public . . . . .	123
Chapter 10. From Event Management to Patrimonialization . . . . .	129
10.1. A museum event . . . . .	130
10.2. Cartier’s presence at the Grand Palais: occupying the space, being admired, being recognized . . . . .	134
10.3. The challenges of patrimonialization: mediation and authority . . . . .	139
Chapter 11. The Conditions for Institutionalization . . . . .	145
11.1. Lack of essentialism of value and categorization . . . . .	146
11.2. Sustainability . . . . .	148
11.3. Public configuration . . . . .	154
Conclusion to Part 3 . . . . .	159
Part 4. Brands: From Mediations to Communicative Matrices of Social Authority . . . . .	163
Introduction to Part 4 . . . . .	165

Chapter 12. Brands: Mediation Devices for Symbolic Effectiveness . . . . .	167
12.1. The conditions of mediation: misappropriation, predilection, and adjustments . . . . .	168
12.2. The brand: a mediation system. . . . .	171
Chapter 13. A Socially Active Symbolic Operativity: From the Factory to the Matrix of Credibility . . . . .	179
13.1. Building relational devices . . . . .	179
13.2. Creating credibility, rhetoric of forgetting and persuasion . . . . .	183
13.3. The brand: a reproducible semiotic management . . . . .	186
Chapter 14. The Brand That Has Become a Communication Matrix . . . . .	193
14.1. The expansion of brand engineering: from unconscious thinking to organizational maieutics. . . . .	193
14.2. Social displacements and communicative derivations: branding as a process of action and play in competition . . . . .	197
14.3. From management to symbolic management: a generalized extension. . . . .	201
Conclusion to Part 4 . . . . .	209
Bibliography . . . . .	211
Index . . . . .	223