

---

Contents

---

Foreword . . . . .	ix
Preface . . . . .	xiii
Part 1. Understanding the Fundamentals of Customer Orientation in B2B Services . . . . .	1
Introduction to Part 1 . . . . .	3
Chapter 1. Customer Orientation . . . . .	5
1.1. Outlines and challenges of customer orientation . . . . .	5
1.1.1. Customer orientation framework . . . . .	5
1.1.2. Benefits of customer orientation . . . . .	6
1.1.3. Implementing customer orientation . . . . .	8
1.2. Marketing as the source of customer orientation . . . . .	12
1.2.1. Marketing as a corporate culture . . . . .	13
1.2.2. Strategic marketing . . . . .	15
1.2.3. Operational marketing . . . . .	16
1.3. The manager's customer orientation in response to marketing issues . . . . .	18
1.3.1. Restricted marketing . . . . .	18
1.3.2. Marketing exposure to technological challenges . . . . .	20
Chapter 2. Reality and Challenges of Service . . . . .	23
2.1. Economy and service: from data to discourse . . . . .	23
2.1.1. The economic weight of service . . . . .	23
2.1.2. Discourses on service . . . . .	26
2.2. Defining the service . . . . .	29

2.2.1. The organizational angle: the concept of servuction . . . . .	29
2.2.2. The market angle: a process and an outcome . . . . .	32
2.3. Characteristics of the service . . . . .	35
2.3.1. Intangibility . . . . .	35
2.3.2. Simultaneity . . . . .	36
2.3.3. Heterogeneity . . . . .	37
2.3.4. Perishability . . . . .	38
Chapter 3. Markers of B2B . . . . .	41
3.1. Reality of the market . . . . .	41
3.1.1. Market option . . . . .	41
3.1.2. Derived demand . . . . .	45
3.2. The relational issue . . . . .	49
3.2.1. Framework of the client-provider relationship . . . . .	49
3.2.2. Relational excellence . . . . .	51
Part 2. Knowing the Customer . . . . .	57
Introduction to Part 2 . . . . .	59
Chapter 4. Modeling the Industrial Sector . . . . .	61
4.1. Direct market . . . . .	61
4.1.1. Knowing one's market in its entirety . . . . .	61
4.1.2. Segmentation . . . . .	64
4.1.3. Targeting . . . . .	67
4.2. Indirect actors . . . . .	68
4.2.1. Identifying the actors . . . . .	69
4.2.2. Managers' responsibility towards indirect actors . . . . .	71
Chapter 5. Understanding the Purchase . . . . .	79
5.1. Buying center concept . . . . .	79
5.1.1. Composition of the buying center . . . . .	79
5.1.2. The buyer . . . . .	82
5.2. Buying process . . . . .	87
5.2.1. The launch . . . . .	88
5.2.2. Call for tenders . . . . .	91
5.2.3. From short list to contract . . . . .	93

---

Chapter 6. Identifying Service Targets	97
6.1. Different types of targets . . . . .	97
6.1.1. Targets within the direct client organization . . . . .	97
6.1.2. Targets in the sector . . . . .	101
6.2. Target satisfaction challenge . . . . .	103
6.2.1. The notion of satisfaction . . . . .	103
6.2.2. Measuring satisfaction . . . . .	107
Part 3. Making the Most of the Offer	111
Introduction to Part 3	113
Chapter 7. Acting Against the Risk of Commoditization	115
7.1. Understanding the phenomenon of the offer commoditization . . . . .	115
7.1.1. Characteristics of a commoditized market . . . . .	115
7.1.2. Explanatory factors . . . . .	116
7.1.3. The commoditization trap . . . . .	119
7.2. Countering the commoditization of the offer . . . . .	123
7.2.1. Strategies for presenting the offer . . . . .	123
7.2.2. Strategies for enriching the offer . . . . .	131
Chapter 8. Formalizing Your Offer	135
8.1. Positioning the offer . . . . .	135
8.1.1. The notion of positioning . . . . .	135
8.1.2. The manager and positioning . . . . .	137
8.2. Design of the service offer . . . . .	139
8.2.1. Structure of the service offer . . . . .	139
8.2.2. Service innovation . . . . .	142
8.3. Plasticity of the service offer . . . . .	147
8.3.1. Levels of plasticity . . . . .	147
8.3.2. Presentation of the service offer . . . . .	150
Chapter 9. Taking Care of One Commercial Action	153
9.1. Commercial proposal . . . . .	153
9.1.1. Documents and materials . . . . .	153
9.1.2. Oral presentation . . . . .	155
9.2. Commercial negotiation . . . . .	158
9.2.1. Preparing for the negotiation . . . . .	158
9.2.2. Negotiating . . . . .	160

Part 4. Delivering the Service . . . . .	165
Introduction to Part 4 . . . . .	167
Chapter 10. Unlocking Human Potential . . . . .	169
10.1. Associating the client . . . . .	169
10.1.1. Principles of client participation in the service . . . . .	169
10.1.2. A more complex reality in B2B . . . . .	171
10.1.3. The manager orchestrates the client's participation . . . . .	173
10.2. Mobilizing the team . . . . .	179
10.2.1. A team in a service situation . . . . .	179
10.2.2. An expanded team . . . . .	184
10.2.3. Customer-oriented leadership . . . . .	186
Chapter 11. Managing Service Operations . . . . .	189
11.1. Operational efficiency . . . . .	189
11.1.1. Operational effectiveness framework . . . . .	189
11.1.2. Specificities of operational efficiency in services . . . . .	192
11.2. Manager's responsibility for customer-oriented operations . . . . .	193
11.2.1. Operations and quality of service . . . . .	193
11.2.2. Operations and service experience . . . . .	195
11.2.3. Operations and profitability . . . . .	197
Chapter 12. Marketing the Tangibles . . . . .	201
12.1. Tangible elements of the service . . . . .	201
12.1.1. Nature of tangible elements . . . . .	201
12.1.2. Dual function of tangible elements . . . . .	203
12.2. Challenges of tangibles . . . . .	206
12.2.1. The human being in a physical environment . . . . .	206
12.2.2. Tangible element of the service brand . . . . .	207
Conclusion . . . . .	211
References . . . . .	215
Index . . . . .	227