

---

Contents

---

Preface. From a Conference to a Book on the Role of Objects in the Practices of Teachers . . . . .	xi
Joël BISAULT, Roselyne LE BOURGEOIS, Jean-François THÉMINES, Mickaël LE MENTEC and Céline CHAUVET-CHANOINE
Acknowledgements . . . . .	xxi
Introduction. In the Teaching Resources Store Cupboard: Investigating the Functions and Uses of Objects in the World of School . . . . .	xxiii
Joël LEBEAUME
Introduction to the Subject. Didactics and Socialization Processes: Walking Between Objects, Things and Worlds . . . . .	xxxvii
Sylvain FABRE
Part 1. Objects and Language(s) . . . . .	1
Chapter 1. The Children's Illustrated Literature Book in an Elementary School English Session: An Object Considered in its Materiality? . . . . .	3
Élise OUVRARD
1.1. The origins of questioning and theoretical framing . . . . .	3
1.2. Constitution of the corpus . . . . .	6
1.3. Analysis of the results. . . . .	7
1.3.1. The book-object in the classroom . . . . .	7

1.3.2. A varied instrumentation of the picture book . . . . .	9
1.3.3. Sense experience . . . . .	13
1.3.4. Memory aids, objects of affection . . . . .	15
1.4. Conclusion . . . . .	17
1.5. References . . . . .	18
Chapter 2. Objects as Catalysts for Writing . . . . .	21
Bruno HUBERT
2.1. Introduction. . . . .	21
2.2. The object, a mediator in self-knowledge . . . . .	22
2.2.1. Bring your exercise books to teacher training . . . . .	22
2.2.2. Personal items for writing at school in third and fourth grades . . . . .	22
2.3. Objects as organizers of the act of writing in the Elementary Section . . . . .	24
2.3.1. From handling objects to the entry into narrative . . . . .	24
2.3.2. From concrete objects to objects of knowledge . . . . .	26
2.3.3. An aid to representation . . . . .	29
2.3.4. Writing, an object of interactions and desire . . . . .	30
2.4. Conclusion . . . . .	32
2.5. References . . . . .	33
Chapter 3. The Role of Artifacts and Gestures in English Language Learning . . . . .	35
Zehra GABILLON and Rodica AILINCAI
3.1. Introduction. . . . .	35
3.2. Theoretical background. . . . .	36
3.2.1. The CLIL approach. . . . .	37
3.2.2. Theoretical position . . . . .	38
3.2.3. Issues and assumptions . . . . .	40
3.3. Methodology . . . . .	41
3.3.1. Characteristics of the population . . . . .	42
3.3.2. Characteristics and content of activities. . . . .	42
3.3.3. Data collection . . . . .	44
3.3.4. Methods of data analysis . . . . .	44
3.4. Results. . . . .	46
3.5. Discussion . . . . .	54
3.6. Conclusion . . . . .	55
3.8. References . . . . .	56

Chapter 4. From Object to Instrument for Language Development in Kindergarten: Necessary Support in the Development of Professional Competence Among Probationary Public School Teachers . . . . .	61
Émilie MAGNAT and Karima OLECHNY
4.1. Introduction. . . . .	61
4.2. From object to instrument for language in kindergarten . . . . .	62
4.2.1. From educational object to instrument . . . . .	62
4.2.2. A consideration of objects, a key stage in the training of school teachers . . . . .	65
4.3. Learning objects: Speech instruments for teacher and pupils . . . . .	71
4.3.1. Support that determines awareness among probationary school teachers . . . . .	71
4.3.2. On the effect of object–instruments on pupils’ speech . . . . .	74
4.4. Conclusion and perspectives. . . . .	76
4.5. References . . . . .	77
Chapter 5. Professional Testimony: Construction and Analysis of a “Graphic Object” in a Physics Class in a 12th Grade Science Major . . . . .	79
Laurent MOUTET
5.1. Introduction. . . . .	79
5.2. Description of the second pilot sequence . . . . .	80
5.2.1. Context of the activity . . . . .	80
5.2.2. Handout distributed to the pupils. . . . .	81
5.2.3. Construction of the “graphic object” of the situation . . . . .	81
5.2.4. A priori analysis of the sequence. . . . .	85
5.2.5. A posteriori analysis of the sequence . . . . .	86
5.3. Conclusion . . . . .	95
5.4. Appendices . . . . .	95
5.4.1. Appendix 1: Concepts of special relativity required . . . . .	95
5.4.2. Appendix 2: Handout distributed to the pupils. . . . .	96
5.5. References . . . . .	98
Part 2. Objects and Early Learning . . . . .	101
Chapter 6. Mascots and Notebooks: Preschool Objects Circulating between the School Space and the Family Space . . . . .	103
Marie-Noëlle DABESTANI
6.1. A pair of peripatetic objects from the transition zone . . . . .	103
6.1.1. A mascot and a notebook for multiple uses. . . . .	103

6.1.2. Context of emergence and current use . . . . .	105
6.2. Theoretical background and corpus. . . . .	108
6.2.1. Studying the school–family relationship space . . . . .	108
6.2.2. Studying the scansion functions between socialization spaces . . . . .	109
6.2.3. Corpus . . . . .	110
6.3. Between the “correct use” of the mascot and a plurality of practices. . . . .	111
6.3.1. “Someone we love” . . . . .	111
6.3.2. The parental skill of giving feedback on a life experience. . . . .	112
6.3.3. A mascot’s absence from the child’s home: Time to get serious again . . . . .	114
6.3.4. Take the mascot seriously to be on the school’s side . . . . .	116
6.3.5. A socializing object and a mediator of the teacher’s authority . . . . .	119
6.4. The parental role written into the mascot’s suitcase . . . . .	121
6.4.1. Everyday objects in the suitcase . . . . .	121
6.4.2. Cultural objects at the bottom of the suitcase . . . . .	123
6.4.3. Standards of good practice contained in the notebooks. . . . .	124
6.5. Conclusion: Accentuated, attenuated or neutralized scansion between socialization spaces . . . . .	126
6.6. References . . . . .	127
Chapter 7. Educational Posters in Kindergarten: A School Object that May Be a Differentiator? . . . . .	131
Elisabeth MOUROT
7.1. Introduction. . . . .	131
7.2. Our methodological choices . . . . .	134
7.2.1. The choice of three sociologically contrasting fields of observation . . . . .	134
7.2.2. The choice to select materials according to their semiotic complexity . . . . .	135
7.2.3. The choice to analyze cognitive–linguistic activity at three levels . . . . .	137
7.3. Findings . . . . .	139
7.3.1. First level of analysis: Differentiated interpretative models . . . . .	139
7.3.2. Second level of analysis: Variations in the models of interpretation favored by the pupils . . . . .	142
7.3.3. Third level of analysis: Social variations in the use of language . . . . .	146
7.4. Discussion: From the construction of the meaning of the study materials to the representation of the act of learning in kindergarten. . . . .	150

---

7.5. Conclusion . . . . .	153
7.6. References . . . . .	156
Chapter 8. Professional Testimony: A Programmable Object for Learning Computer Science at Elementary School . . . . .	159
Olivier GRUGIER and Sandra NOGRY
8.1. Introduction. . . . .	159
8.2. Teaching sequence observed in cycle 1 . . . . .	161
8.2.1. Presentation of the teaching sequence. . . . .	162
8.2.2. Phase 1: Constructing a scheme by identifying the actuators . . . . .	162
8.2.3. Phase 2: The Clear button, an obstacle to understanding the concept of a sequence . . . . .	163
8.3. Teaching sequence observed in cycle 2 . . . . .	164
8.3.1. Presentation of the teaching sequence. . . . .	164
8.3.2. Phase 1: Deconstructing an inoperative scheme and learning about the control commands . . . . .	164
8.3.3. Phase 2: Constructing the concept of a sequence . . . . .	165
8.4. Teaching sequence observed in cycle 3 . . . . .	168
8.4.1. Presentation of the teaching sequence. . . . .	168
8.4.2. Phase 1: Constructing a scheme by identifying the actuators . . . . .	168
8.4.3. Phase 2: Programming movements and reproducing them. . . . .	169
8.5. Discussion . . . . .	171
8.5.1. Time for discovering how the robot works. . . . .	172
8.5.2. Guidance with pedagogical artifacts and procedures . . . . .	172
8.5.3. Learning progression between cycles . . . . .	172
8.6. Acknowledgements . . . . .	173
8.7. References . . . . .	173
List of Authors . . . . .	175
Index . . . . .	179
Summary of Volume 2 . . . . .	181