Chapter 1. Social-emotional Competencies and Learning in Children .....	1
Ophélie COURBET and Thomas VILLEMONTÉIX
1.1. Social-emotional competencies, a key predictor of child development .....	1
1.1.1. Definitions .....	1
1.1.2. Influence of short-term SECs: emotion, behavior and academic achievement .....	3
1.1.3. Long-term influence of SECs: quality of life and socio-professional integration .....	6
1.2. Mechanisms underlying the association between SECs and learning .....	7
1.2.1. Influence of the child's social-emotional characteristics on their learning abilities .....	7
1.2.2. Influence of the social-emotional environment on the child's learning processes .....	9
1.2.3. SECs and the learning context: a reciprocal influence .....	10

1.3. Working with SECs in learning . . . . .	11
1.3.1. The school as a place to promote SECs . . . . .	11
1.3.2. Important elements for the implementation of programs in schools . . . . .	12
1.3.3. Some international social and emotional learning programs . . . . .	14
1.3.4. Effects of learning SECs at school . . . . .	15
1.3.5. Current limitations in the field of SEC development in schools . . . . .	17
1.4. References . . . . .	17

Chapter 2. Humor in Infants: Development and Implications in Learning . . . . .

Rana ESSEILY and Lauriane RAT-FISCHER

2.1. Introduction: origins, universality and implications in learning . . . . .	21
2.2. Humor: definitions and functions . . . . .	24
2.2.1. Definitions . . . . .	24
2.2.2. The different types of humor in infants . . . . .	24
2.2.3. The functions of humor . . . . .	25
2.3. The development of humor in the first months of life . . . . .	28
2.3.1. Observational studies. . . . .	29
2.3.2. Laboratory studies . . . . .	29
2.3.3. Humor and language . . . . .	31
2.4. Humor and learning in infants. . . . .	32
2.4.1. Empirical studies . . . . .	32
2.4.2. Cognitive processes. . . . .	33
2.4.3. Physiological processes . . . . .	35
2.4.4. Positive emotions . . . . .	36
2.4.5. Positive emotions, humor and curiosity: toward a learning model?. . . . .	38
2.5. Conclusions and perspectives . . . . .	40
2.6. References . . . . .	41

Chapter 3. Toward Considering Emotional Skills as Academic Skills . . . . .

Sabine GUERAUD and Louise GOYET

3.1. Emotions: evolution of theories and the concept . . . . .	48
3.1.1. The pioneers of the scientific theories of emotions . . . . .	48

3.1.2. Contemporary scientific approaches to emotions . . . . .	50
3.2. Development of emotional competencies . . . . .	52

3.4. Emotional skills: academic skills? . . . . .	63
3.5. References . . . . .	64
Chapter 4. Motivation and Academic Learning . . . . .	73
Evelyne CLÉMENT and Alain GUERRIEN
4.1. Introduction. . . . .	73
4.2. Different approaches to academic motivation: theoretical aspects . . . . .	74
4.2.1. Self-determination theory . . . . .	74
4.2.2. Achievement goal theory . . . . .	77
4.2.3. The self-efficacy theory . . . . .	78
4.2.4. Common principles between these different approaches . . . . .	80
4.3. Different ways of being motivated: what consequences? . . . . .	82
4.3.1. Consequences according to the SDT. . . . .	82
4.3.2. Consequences according to the achievement goals theory . . . . .	83
4.3.3. Consequences according to the SSE . . . . .	84
4.4. Promoting optimal motivation at school: what are the levers? . . . . .	85
4.5. Discussion . . . . .	89
4.6. Conclusion . . . . .	92
4.7. References . . . . .	92
Chapter 5. The Role of Emotion and Learning in Decision-making Situations During Development. . . . .	99
Anaïs OSMONT, Ania AÏTE and Marianne HABIB
5.1. Decision-making: definitions . . . . .	100
5.1.1. Decision-making under risk and decision-making under ambiguity . . . . .	100
5.1.2. Risk-taking . . . . .	101

5.2. Emotion and decision-making under ambiguity . . . . .	102

Chapter 8. Trauma, Cognition and Learning . . . . .	193
Serge CAPAROS
8.1. Learning: learner, content and context . . . . .	193
8.2. Trauma . . . . .	195
8.2.1. Definition of a traumatic event . . . . .	195
8.2.2. A traumatic or potentially traumatic event? . . . . .	196
8.2.3. The psychological injury generated by traumatic exposure . . . . .	197
8.3. Impact of trauma on learning . . . . .	199
8.4. Trauma and learning: cognitive intermediaries . . . . .	201
8.4.1. Short-term memory or working memory . . . . .	202
8.4.2. Long-term memory . . . . .	206
8.4.3. Reasoning . . . . .	209
8.4.4. Executive functions . . . . .	210
8.4.5. Sustained attention . . . . .	211
8.5. Neuroanatomical and physiological considerations . . . . .	212
8.5.1. Physiological arousal . . . . .	212
8.5.2. The hippocampus . . . . .	213
8.6. Conclusion . . . . .	214
8.7. References . . . . .	215
Chapter 9. Wisdom as the Fruit of a Lifelong Emotional Learning Process? . . . . .	223
Sandrine VIEILLARD
9.1. Wisdom as a psychological construct . . . . .	225
9.2. The entry into wisdom and old age . . . . .	227
9.2.1. Psychometric approach to the effects of age on wisdom . . . . .	227
