

Contents

Chapter 1. Collective Thinking About Mobility Scales . . . . .	1
Vincent KAUFMANN and Guillaume DREVON
1.1. Introduction . . . . .	1
1.2. The notion of mobility in social sciences . . . . .	3
1.3. The need for an integrative approach . . . . .	5
1.4. A new research arena . . . . .	8
1.5. Articulating spatial and temporal mobility scales . . . . .	9
1.6. References . . . . .	11
Chapter 2. A Society with No Respite: Mobility as an Interdisciplinary Concept . . . . .	15
Christophe MINCKE
2.1. Introduction . . . . .	15
2.2. Mobility as a scale of magnitudes in a reticent capitalism (Boltanski and Chiapello) . . . . .	17
2.2.1. Justifying inequalities . . . . .	17
2.2.2. Inequalities in a reticular context: the project-based city . . . . .	18
2.2.3. Project-based cities and mobility . . . . .	19
2.3. Movement: the central element of liquid modernity (Bauman) . . . . .	20
2.3.1. Dissolution and anchoring of solid modernity . . . . .	20
2.3.2. The fading of ends and limits . . . . .	21
2.3.3. The individual, the model, shopping . . . . .	22
2.4. The alienating acceleration (Hartmut Rosa) . . . . .	24
2.4.1. Acceleration . . . . .	24
2.4.2. Three critiques of acceleration . . . . .	25
2.5. The turning point of mobility (Urry and Sheller) . . . . .	27
2.5.1. Mobilities as an analyzer of social matters . . . . .	27
2.5.2. Mobilities in weak link societies . . . . .	28
2.5.3. The social aspect of mobility . . . . .	29
2.6. Mobility as an injunction (Mincke and Montulet) . . . . .	29

2.6.1. Two spatiotemporal morphologies . . . . .	30
2.6.2. Mobility shifts. . . . .	31
2.6.3. The mobilitarian ideal . . . . .	32
2.7. Contextualizing research on mobilities . . . . .	34
2.8. References . . . . .	36
Chapter 3. Mobility Justice as a Political Object . . . . .	37
Caroline GALLEZ
3.1. Introduction . . . . .	37
3.2. Inequality and mobility justice in contemporary Western societies. . . . .	38
3.3. Social justice and mobility, theoretical approaches . . . . .	40
3.4. Inequalities and equity in transport and urban planning . . . . .	42
3.4.1. Integrating equity in the evaluation of transport policies . . . . .	43
3.4.2. Moving from inequalities in mobility to inequalities in access to facilities. . . . .	44
3.4.3. Evaluating equity of access to facilities . . . . .	45
3.5. Mobility justice: contributions from the social sciences . . . . .	47
3.5.1. Ambiguities of mobility . . . . .	48
3.5.2. Mobility regimes and differentiation of mobility rights . . . . .	49
3.5.3. Mobility justice in the face of the ecological emergency and social inequalities . . . . .	51
3.6. Beyond inequalities, mobility justice . . . . .	53
3.7. References . . . . .	54
Chapter 4. Appropriations and Uses of Travel Time: How to Inhabit Mobility . . . . .	63
Juliana GONZÁLEZ
4.1. Introduction . . . . .	63
4.2. The emergence of a research field in search of a position . . . . .	64
4.3. The basis for exploring the uses of travel time . . . . .	65
4.3.1. What are the uses of travel time for each mode of transport? . . . . .	67
4.3.2. What theoretical frameworks should be used to address the qualitative dimension of travel time? . . . . .	72
4.4. Inhabiting travel time: at what cost to the environment? . . . . .	74
4.5. The relevance of mixed methods for building a common survey base . . . . .	75
4.6. Major research studies . . . . .	77
4.7. Discussions and research perspectives . . . . .	78
4.8. References . . . . .	79

Chapter 5. Designing Space for Walking as the Primary Mode of Travel . . . . .	87
Sébastien LORD and Mathilde LOISELLE
5.1. Introduction . . . . .	87
5.2. A diversity of approaches to the objective conditions of walking, first of all a question of scale? . . . . .	90
5.2.1. Walkability of the city and the neighborhood . . . . .	90
5.2.2. The urban quality and the walking environment . . . . .	91
5.2.3. Applications for the development of walking environments . . . . .	93
5.3. The conditions of operation, what is the place for the walker's experience? . . . . .	95
5.3.1. The subjectivity of walking in its social and sensory dimensions . . . . .	95
5.3.2. The atmosphere and its components . . . . .	97
5.3.3. On the hermeneutic significance of atmospheres in the practice of walking . . . . .	100
5.4. What are the challenges of the scales of analysis for intervention in living environments? . . . . .	101
5.5. References . . . . .	103
Chapter 6. Residential Trajectories and Ways of Living: An Overview of France and Europe . . . . .	107
Samuel CARPENTIER-POSTEL
6.1. Introduction . . . . .	107
6.2. Residential choice as social positioning . . . . .	108
6.2.1. Classical models... . . . .	109
6.2.2. ... to mobility turn. . . . .	110
6.3. Elements of analysis of residential mobility in France and Europe . . . . .	112
6.3.1. General spatial dynamics of residential mobility . . . . .	112
6.3.2. Differentiation by life course . . . . .	114
6.3.3. Differentiation by social position . . . . .	117
6.4. Discussion and perspectives: toward new ways of living . . . . .	121
6.4.1. Multifaceted emerging practices . . . . .	121
6.4.2. Toward comprehensive and biographical approaches . . . . .	124
6.5. Conclusion . . . . .	126
6.6. References . . . . .	127
Chapter 7. City, State, Transnational Space: Scales and Multidisciplinary Approaches of Migrations . . . . .	133
Garance CLÉMENT and Camille GARDESSE
7.1. Introduction . . . . .	133
7.2. Myths and realities of contemporary migration . . . . .	134
7.2.1. A majority of interregional migration . . . . .	134

7.2.2. More diversified and feminized international migration? . . . . .	135
7.2.3. Deconstructing the European “migration crisis” . . . . .	137
7.3. “Transnationalism”, “privilege” and “bordering”: taking into account other scales of migration . . . . .	139
7.3.1. From “immigrants” to “migrants” . . . . .	140
7.3.2. The notion of migratory privilege . . . . .	141
7.3.3. The contributions of border studies . . . . .	143
7.4. Cities in migration studies . . . . .	144
7.4.1. Spatial dispersion policies and practices . . . . .	145
7.4.2. A local turn in migration governance? . . . . .	146
7.4.3. Thinking about reception and hospitality . . . . .	147
7.5. Investigating migration . . . . .	148
7.6. Conclusion . . . . .	151
7.7. References . . . . .	152
Chapter 8. Work and High Mobility in Europe . . . . .	161
Emmanuel RAVALET
8.1. Introduction . . . . .	161
8.2. High work-related mobility . . . . .	162
8.2.1. Intensive daily commuting . . . . .	163
8.2.2. Weekly commuting . . . . .	165
8.2.3. Fluctuating commuting patterns . . . . .	166
8.2.4. Frequent travel for work . . . . .	167
8.3. The profile of the highly mobile population . . . . .	168
8.4. Reasons for the use of large-scale work-related mobility . . . . .	169
8.5. The experience of high work-related mobility . . . . .	172
8.6. High mobility linked to work and digital technology, what prospects? . . . . .	173
8.7. Conclusion . . . . .	175
8.8. References . . . . .	176
Chapter 9. Event-Driven Mobility: From a Theoretical Approach to Practical Management . . . . .	185
Pascal VIOT
9.1. Introduction: the challenges of contemporary event-driven mobility . . . . .	185
9.2. Mobility and major events: testing the host territory . . . . .	187
9.3. A qualitative and quantitative test . . . . .	188
9.4. Road policing strategy . . . . .	189
9.5. Toward a mobility turn of event-driven management practices . . . . .	191
9.5.1. The engineer’s planning strategy . . . . .	192
9.5.2. The user-spectator’s experience pathway . . . . .	194
9.5.3. The development of event mobility management practices . . . . .	196

9.6. Conclusion: toward a sociology of event-driven mobility . . . . .	197
9.7. References . . . . .	198
Chapter 10. Inland Navigation: Rethinking Mobility from an Aquatic Perspective . . . . .	201
Laurie DAFPE
10.1. Introduction . . . . .	201
10.2. Societal and environmental issues of inland navigation. . . . .	202
10.2.1. Modal share of inland waterways in the European Union . . . . .	202
10.2.2. Prospects for the development of river activities and the shift from road to waterways . . . . .	203
10.2.3. Faster, less far, more anchored: the scales of future navigation . . . . .	206
10.3. Current state of knowledge . . . . .	207
10.3.1. Aquatic mobility, an emerging field of research . . . . .	208
10.3.2. Small-scale inland navigation and “people of the river,” flurban lifestyles . . . . .	209
10.3.3. Trajectories of houseboats and river dwellers . . . . .	210
10.3.4. Toward “wet ontologies” . . . . .	211
10.3.5. The watery turn: grasping mobilities from an aquatic perspective . . . . .	213
10.4. Conclusion: meeting between water and land . . . . .	216
10.5. References . . . . .	217
Chapter 11. Temporary Mobilities and Neo-Nomadism . . . . .	221
Arnaud LE MARCHAND
11.1. Introduction . . . . .	221
11.2. State of current knowledge and major references . . . . .	222
11.2.1. Socioeconomics of temporary labor migration . . . . .	222
11.2.2. Neo-nomadism and countercultures . . . . .	224
11.3. Challenges for contemporary societies . . . . .	226
11.4. Survey methodologies, analysis with missing data . . . . .	229
11.5. Place in general sociology . . . . .	232
11.6. Status of scientific debates and controversies in the field. . . . .	234
11.7. References . . . . .	235
Chapter 12. Towards a Rhythmology of Mobile Societies . . . . .	241
Guillaume DREVON and Vincent KAUFMANN
12.1. Limitations of the concept of mobility . . . . .	241
12.2. Thinking about the entanglement of mobilities using forms of rhythm . . . . .	243
12.3. Responding to the challenges of mobility research with a rhythmology of mobile societies . . . . .	244
12.4. References . . . . .	246

List of Authors . . . . .	249
Index . . . . .	251