Foreword . . . . .	xiii
Sébastien ROUQUETTE
Introduction . . . . .	xvii
Luc MASSOU, Patrick MPONDO-DICKA and Nathalie PINÈDE
Part 1. Websites as a Socio-technical Device. . . . . .	1
Chapter 1. Observing the Web through the Lens of Websites . . . . .	3
Camille ALLOING
1.1. Introduction. . . . .	3
1.2. The website as a space and an architecture . . . . .	5
1.3. The pioneer Web (before 2000). . . . .	7
1.4. The citation Web (from 2000 to 2005). . . . .	12
1.5. The Web known as Web 2.0 (from 2005 to 2010). . . . .	15
1.6. The social Web (from 2010 to 2015). . . . .	19
1.7. An affective and artificial Web (2015 to the present) . . . . .	23
1.8. Conclusion . . . . .	24

Chapter 2. Is the Web a Semiodiscursive Object? . . . . .	29
Christine BARATS and Julia BONACCORSI
2.1. Introduction. . . . .	29
2.2. How to do relevant data sets with Web data? The making of a complex object of research . . . . .	31
2.2.1. Sociotechnical devices and the construction of the object . . . . .	31
2.2.2. From the research question to the data sets: knowledge and documentation of the device . . . . .	34
2.2.3. Notional tools for semiodiscursive approaches . . . . .	38
2.3. Standing the test of time: surveys and methods. . . . .	42
2.3.1. Tangled temporalities . . . . .	42
2.3.2. Defining the right way to select and collect data sets . . . . .	44
2.3.3. From the notion of corpus to the notion of digital corpus . . . . .	46
2.4. Violence against data: issues of interpretation . . . . .	49
2.4.1. Formatting of issues by research instrumentation . . . . .	49
2.4.2. Limits and challenges of interpretation: taking the illusion of immediacy and standardization of meaning into account. . . . .	51
2.5. Conclusion . . . . .	52
2.6. References . . . . .	53
Chapter 3. Expertise from Websites: Pedagogical Perspectives in Information and Communication. . . . . .	57
Luc MASSOU
3.1. Introduction. . . . .	57
3.2. What is the role of website expertise in information and communication?. . . . .	58
3.2.1. Example of a 3-year educational program . . . . .	59
3.2.2. From analysis to website expertise. . . . .	62
3.3. What are the benefits of semio-rhetorical, critical and socio-technical approaches for the learner?. . . . .	65
3.3.1. An “external” expertise to put results into perspective . . . . .	66
3.3.2. Several points in common with our scientific analyses. . . . .	67
3.4. Conclusion . . . . .	70
3.5. Appendices . . . . .	72
3.6. References . . . . .	76

Part 2. The Website as a Semiodiscursive Device . . . . .	81
Chapter 4. Semiotics of Digital Design: From Ethos to Ethics . . . . .	83
Nicole PIGNIER
4.1. Introduction. . . . .	83
4.2. Semiotics of webdesign: from 2004 to 2021 . . . . .	85
4.2.1. A realistic or hyper-realistic form of multimodal writing . . . . .	85
4.2.2. A mythical or symbolic multimodal writing . . . . .	87
4.2.3. A readable and redundant multimodal writing . . . . .	88
4.2.4. A reality-removing and subversive multimodal writing . . . . .	90
4.2.5. The semiotic functions of Web interfaces. . . . .	91
4.3. Beyond its ethos, the ethical aim of digital design . . . . .	92
4.3.1. Divergences between ethos and ethics. . . . .	93
4.3.2. Websites in a tense relationship with other players in digital design . . . . .	94
4.4. Interrogating the semiotic interrelations between the strata of digital design. . . . .	95
4.4.1. The notions of prefiguration, configuration and figuration. . . . .	95
4.4.2. Semiotic interrelationships between the strata . . . . .	97
4.4.3. Digital design: from ethos to ethics . . . . .	98
4.5. Conclusion . . . . .	101
4.6. References . . . . .	103
Chapter 5. Social Semiotic Approach of Press Websites: Genesis of a Method . . . . .	105
Alexandra SAEMMER and Nolwenn TRÉHONDART
5.1. Introduction. . . . .	105
5.2. Epistemological and methodological issues. . . . .	107
5.2.1. Genesis of a method . . . . .	107
5.2.2. Foundational concepts . . . . .	109
5.2.3. Semiotic tools introduced in the field . . . . .	110
5.3. The first field: a critical decoding of interfaces. . . . .	112
5.3.1. Experimental protocol . . . . .	112
5.3.2. Spontaneous opinions and impressions from viewing BFM TV's website . . . . .	113
5.3.3. Identification of editorial units and first interpretations . . . . .	114
5.3.4. Debating and choosing hypotheses. . . . .	117

---

5.4. Second field: toward a social semiotic approach of websites. . . . .	118
5.5. Interpretative hypotheses and interpretative filters. . . . .	120
5.5.1. “BFM, the information supermarket”, from the lens of an anti-capitalist viewpoint and professional habits . . . . .	120
5.5.2. The “sexist, right-wing BFM”, through the prism of a feminist and intersectional perspective . . . . .	122
5.5.3. “BFM as a counter-power”, through the lens of a complicit or critical adherence to the state media . . . . .	124
5.6. Conclusion . . . . .	125
5.7. Appendices . . . . .	127
5.8. References . . . . .	128

Chapter 6. Analyzing the Mobilization Against the LPR on Twitter:
Theoretical Issues and Methodological Challenges . . . . . 131

Justine SIMON

6.1. Introduction. . . . .	131
6.2. Multidimensional approach to digital social networks . . . . .	134
6.2.1. Shedding light on the notion of hypertextualized discourse . . . . .	134
6.2.2. Shared images and participatory culture . . . . .	134
6.2.3. Interdiscursivity, narrativity and argumentativity . . . . .	138
6.3. Ethical questions and methodological challenges . . . . .	140
6.3.1. Ethical concerns . . . . .	140
6.3.2. Methodological challenges . . . . .	143
6.4. Presentation of the six sub-corpora . . . . .	147
6.4.1. Sub-corpus 1: the narrating Twitter user . . . . .	148
6.4.2. Sub-corpus 2: the narrator-character Twitter user . . . . .	149
6.4.3. Sub-corpus 3: calls to action . . . . .	152
6.4.4. Sub-corpus 4: sharing visual gags and interactive mini-stories . . . . .	152
6.4.5. Sub-corpus 5: sharing of inter-iconic images and double narratives . . . . .	154
6.4.6. Sub-corpus 6: oppositions of discourse/counter-discourse. . . . .	157
6.5. Outlook and analytical perspectives . . . . .	158
6.6. Conclusion . . . . .	159
6.7. References . . . . .	161

Chapter 7. Metaphor and Analysis of Websites: Transformations of a Media Object . . . . .	167
Pergia GKOUSKOU
7.1. Introduction. . . . .	167
7.2. Uses of metaphors for analyzing websites and digital communications. . . . .	168
7.2.1. The “website” object: between documents, media and devices . .	168
7.2.2. The place of metaphor in the analysis of the “website” object . .	172
7.2.3. Metaphor and intermediality . . . . .	173
7.2.4. Metaphors, remediatization and strategies of digital communications. . . . .	175
7.3. Websites that visualize open data: making sense using the metaphor as inquiry. . . . .	178
7.3.1. Hypermedia maps in data visualization . . . . .	179
7.3.2. The metaphor of the mosaic in data visualization . . . . .	182
7.3.3. Metaphor as a framework for action: involvement of the Internet user and a sense of transparency . . . . .	183
7.4. Conclusion . . . . .	186
7.5. References . . . . .	187
Part 3. The Website as a Communication Device . . . . .	191
Chapter 8. Thematic Analysis of Hyperlinks: A Taxonomic Approach . . . . .	193
Nathalie PINÈDE
8.1. Introduction. . . . .	193
8.2. Analytical framework for an info-communicational reading of websites . . . . .	194
8.3. The interest of a taxonomic reading grid for websites . . . . .	199
8.4. Presentation of the methodological approach. . . . .	202
8.4.1. Corpus of university websites. . . . .	203
8.4.2. A semidiscursive and taxonomic analysis of web pages . . . . .	204
8.5. Primary results . . . . .	206
8.5.1. Analysis of the main menus of the home pages . . . . .	206
8.5.2. Generic approach to the HLU corpus . . . . .	210
8.5.3. Informational profiles from the taxonomy of the HLUs . . . . .	213
8.5.4. A closer look at a class: “User profiles”. . . . .	219

8.6. Conclusion . . . . .	221
8.7. Appendices . . . . .	223
8.8. References . . . . .	227
Chapter 9. The Documediality of Cross-border Organizations . . . .	231
Marie-Hélène HERMAND
9.1. Introduction. . . . .	231
9.2. Theoretical and methodological anchoring in semiotics applied to the media . . . . .	233
9.3. First step: create a reading of three cross-border organizational models through the lens of documentality . . . . .	235
9.3.1. Within the European Union (EU): the documentality of the Euroregions-fluids . . . . .	235
9.3.2. On the borders of the EU: the documentality of the Euroregion buffers . . . . .	237
9.3.3. In Southern Africa: the documentality of ecoregions . . . . .	238
9.4. Step two: build a corpus of websites from the three cross-border organizational models considered . . . . .	239
9.4.1. The website of the Tyrol Alto Adige Trentino Euroregion. . . . .	239
9.4.2. The website of the Danube-Criş-Mureş-Tisa Euroregion . . . . .	240
9.4.3. The website of Kavango-Zambezi Transfrontier Conservation Area . . . . .	243
9.5. Stage three: identify the memory processes to unravel the skein of cross-border narratives presented to audiences . . . . .	244
9.5.1. Call for a shared memory: anchoring within a territory-symbol. . . . .	244
9.5.2. Call for a shared history: anchoring within a legitimate quest. . . . .	248
9.5.3. The call for a shared heritage: an anchoring in shared living . . . . .	250
9.6. Step four: qualitatively comparing the results . . . . .	255
9.7. Conclusion . . . . .	259
9.8. References . . . . .	261
Chapter 10. “Tell Us Your Data”, Between Euphemization, Standardization, and Digital Poetics . . . . .	265
Camille RONDOT
10.1. Introduction . . . . .	265
10.2. Epistemological and methodological issues . . . . .	268
10.2.1. Performance, notoriety and visibility: a disruptive discourse . . . . .	268
10.2.2. Empowered skills: a discourse on the method as a foundational basis . . . . .	272

10.2.3. From social data to consumer knowledge: information rhetoric . . . . .	275
10.3. A poetics of the visible and the audible . . . . .	276
10.3.1. Revealing the visible and making ordinary conversations speak . . . . .	276
10.3.2. Revealing what is visible through surveillance: between euphemized discourse and the desire to create a panopticon . .	279
