
Contents

Foreword	xiii
Introduction	xvii
Part 1. History and Identity	1
Chapter 1. The Origins of Projection Mapping	3
Ludovic BURCZYKOWSKI
1.1. Introduction.	3
1.2. Let's moonwalk! A short crossing through time	4
1.2.1. The emergence of the expressions "video mapping", "projection mapping", "spatial augmented reality" and "spatial correspondence" between the beginning of the 21st Century and the end of the 20th Century	4
1.2.2. From 17th Century magic lanterns to ancient camera obscura	5
1.2.3. The screen as a material considered as a void: projection mapping in negative from the 15th Century onwards	6
1.2.4. How far back in history can we go?	7
1.3. Immersion in hallucinated worlds.	8
1.3.1. Some films on the theme of nested or fallacious realities in line with the first digital projection mapping installations	8
1.3.2. Some philosophies of illusion	9
1.4. Examples of visual devices	10
1.4.1. Two visual instruments: anamorphoses and X-rays.	11
1.4.2. Immersive panoramas	11
1.4.3. Augmented reality and low-tech virtual reality	12
1.4.4. Some visual sequences spatialized since Antiquity	13
1.5. The agencies	14

1.5.1. The arts of memory	14
1.5.2. Feedback, or the chicken and the egg problem.	15
1.5.3. Some practical uses of the magic lantern	16
1.6. A figure of transgression and juxtaposition with a beyond	17
1.6.1. Unconditionality	17
1.6.2. Magic image imagery	18
1.6.3. Anima.	20
1.6.4. See from a distance.	20
1.7. The invention of an “empty box” as an image container	21
1.7.1. Any precursors?.	22
1.7.2. Alberti and the invention of the screen	22
1.7.3. The humanistic context of the disruptive object-subject disconnect reified in and through the image	23
1.7.4. A hypothetical starting point	24
1.8. Modern inflexions: obsolescence of old visual devices and tacit challenges to the Albertian model.	25
1.8.1. Obsolescence	25
1.8.2. Challenges	26
1.9. Parastatic scenography	28
1.9.1. For the eyes: the uncomplicated image	28
1.9.2. Living presences and images	29
1.9.3. From the screen to film	30
1.10. From expedition to investigation	32
1.10.1. Resilience.	32
1.10.2. Ongoing investigation	33
1.11. Conclusion	34
1.12. References.	34
Chapter 2. The “Spatialization” of the Gaze with the Projection Mapping Dispositive	37
Justyna Weronika ŁABADŹ
2.1. Introduction.	37
2.2. The release of the “cinematographic cocoon”	38
2.3. Changing the projection mapping dispositive.	41
2.4. The spatialization of the gaze or the perception of the projection mapping spectator	44
2.5. “Attractions set-up” or real content?	48
2.6. References	49
Chapter 3. Projection Mapping: A New Symbolic Form?	51
Martina STELLA
3.1. Introduction.	51

3.1.1. Symbolic form and apparatus	51
3.1.2. Apparatus and projection mapping	53
3.2. A shifting tool	54
3.3. The surface	56
3.3.1. The environment/projection ratio	56
3.3.2. The volume	57
3.3.3. The projection plane: the substrate	59
3.4. The projection	60
3.4.1. The haptic image	60
3.4.2. The point of view or the projector	61
3.5. Conclusion	63
3.6. References	66
Chapter 4. Points of View: Origins, History and Limits of Projection Mapping	69
Ludovic BURCZYKOWSKI and Marine THÉBAULT
4.1. The origins of a movement towards alternative forms according to Romain Tardy	69
4.1.1. Origins and VJing	69
4.1.2. Transformation and continuity	70
4.1.3. Projection mapping and the screen	71
4.1.4. Projection mapping of yesterday, today and tomorrow	72
4.2. A short history of projection mapping according to Dominique Moulon	73
4.2.1. Projection mapping in the history of light	73
4.2.2. The invention of the video projector	74
4.2.3. The feeling of immersion with different applications of projection mapping	75
4.2.4. The role of ICTs today and tomorrow	77
4.3. Projection mapping and its limits according to Christiane Paul	78
4.3.1. The New Aesthetic	78
4.3.2. Projection mapping as a technology	79
4.3.3. Projection mapping as an experience connecting the physical and the virtual	80
4.3.4. Projection mapping and museums or art institutions	81
Part 2. Texts and Techniques	83
Chapter 5. Listening to Creators in Residence	85
Marine THÉBAULT and Daniel SCHMITT
5.1. Creators, a residence and a festival	85
5.2. Capturing the genesis of a work	86

5.3. REMIND: a method to capture the dynamics of the situated creative experience	87
5.4. Space, tool and solitude.	88
5.4.1. The instrumental space.	89
5.4.2. The dynamics of the emotional states of the creators in situ	97
5.4.3. Work, emotions and troubles	99
5.5. New residence arrangements	100
5.5.1. Limitations and contributions of this type of survey	100
5.5.2. Towards a design of space and experience	100
5.5.3. The creator profession	101
5.6. Prospects for the future	102
5.7. Increased attention to the place of creators in digital arts	103
5.8. Acknowledgements	104
5.9. References	104
Chapter 6. Projection Mapping and Automatic Calibration: Beyond a Technique	107
Sofia KOURKOULAKOU
6.1. Introduction.	107
6.2. Towards a new projection dynamic.	107
6.3. Automatic calibration	108
6.4. Automatic geometric calibration	109
6.4.1. Procams methods	109
6.4.2. Zhang method (Zhang 1998, 1999)	109
6.5. Projector calibration using one or more pre-calibrated cameras	109
6.5.1. Fringe Pattern/Structured Light DMD (Digital Micromirror Device).	110
6.6. Automatic calibration applied	111
6.7. Automatic calibration in France.	112
6.8. Conclusion	112
6.9. References	113
Chapter 7. Projection Mapping Gaming	115
Julian ALVAREZ
7.1. Introduction.	115
7.2. Specifying the scope of the projection mapping game	118
7.3. The indoor projection mapping game	119
7.4. The outdoor projection mapping game.	123
7.5. Conclusion	125
7.6. References	126

Chapter 8. Projection Mapping and Photogrammetry: Interest, Contribution, Current Limitations and Future Perspectives	127
Nicolas LISSARRAGUE
8.1. Introduction	127
8.2. State of the art	127
8.3. Photogrammetry for projection mapping	129
8.4. Contribution: an automated imaging device for object photogrammetry	130
8.5. Current limitations and future prospects	137
8.6. References	139
Chapter 9. Points of View: Sound, Projection and Interaction	141
Jérémy OURY, Ludovic BURCZYKOWSKI and Marine THÉBAULT
9.1. Sound creation projection mapping, a real composition of sound	141
9.1.1. Introduction	141
9.1.2. The place of sound	142
9.1.3. Analysis of works of art	146
9.1.4. Conclusion	149
9.2. Projectionist: a profession according to Pascal Leroy	150
9.2.1. History	150
9.2.2. Identity and tastes	151
9.2.3. Art and technology	151
9.2.4. Limitations	152
9.2.5. Projection mapping and cinema	152
9.3. Interactive projection mapping by Anne-Laure George-Molland	153
9.3.1. Enter interactivity to make it exist	153
9.3.2. Small interactivity and projection mapping	155
9.3.3. The future of interactivity in projection mapping	156
9.4. References	157
Part 3. Production and Dissemination	159
Chapter 10. The Factory of the Future, Augmented Reality and Projection Mapping	161
Pascal LEVEL
10.1. Introduction	161
10.2. The factory of the future	161
10.2.1. The process	161
10.2.2. The technological challenges of the plant of the future	163
10.2.3. A digital and connected factory	164
10.3. Augmented reality	165

10.3.1. Simple definition	165
10.3.2. Some chronological references for augmented reality	166
10.4. Factory of the future and augmented reality	169
10.5. Augmented reality and projection mapping	170
10.6. Future plant and projection mapping	171
10.6.1. Some preliminary considerations	171
10.6.2. Some examples of projection mapping in manufacturing	172
10.7. Conclusion	175
Chapter 11. Heritage Mediation through Projection Mapping	177
Alexandra GEORGESCU PAQUIN
11.1. Introduction	177
11.2. The symbolic value of heritage	179
11.3. Projection mapping as a means of cultural heritage mediation	180
11.3.1. Transcending mediation	181
11.3.2. Combined mediation	186
11.3.3. Self-reflective mediation	189
11.4. Conclusion: monumentalize the monumental	194
11.5. References	196
Chapter 12. Projection Mapping: A Mediation Tool for Heritage Resilience?	199
Hafida BOULEKBACHE and Douniazed CHIBANE
12.1. Introduction	199
12.2. Architecture, a heritage trace and an art to be preserved.	200
12.3. The architectural heritage between preservation and mediation issues	203
12.4. Meeting between architectural heritage and projection mapping.	203
12.5. Classification of architectural projection mapping	205
12.5.1. Communication issue	205
12.5.2. Information issue	208
12.6. Meeting between architecture and projection mapping	209
12.7. Conclusion	210
12.8. References	211
Chapter 13. Architectural Projection Mapping Contests: An Opportunity for Experimentation and Discovery	213
Jérémy OURY
13.1. Introduction	213
13.2. Different projection mapping projection contexts	214
13.2.1. Limitation of projection mapping orders	214
13.2.2. Contests, platforms of creative freedom	215

13.3. Interests and functioning of the contests	216
13.3.1. The organizers' point of view	216
13.3.2. Functioning of the contests	217
13.4. Analysis of the 2018 season	220
13.4.1. Perspective of the artists	220
13.4.2. Results of the 2018 contests	223
13.5. Conclusion	226
Chapter 14. Points of View: Supporting and Highlighting Projection Mapping	229
Marine THÉBAULT and Ludovic BURCZYKOWSKI
14.1. Video Mapping European Center according to Antoine Manier	229
14.2. Lighting design and sustainable projection mapping installations according to Alain Grisval	231
14.2.1. Lighting designer	231
14.2.2. Durable devices	232
14.2.3. Economy	232
14.2.4. Legal aspect	233
14.2.5. Identity and taste	233
14.2.6. Interaction for all audiences	234
List of Authors	235
Index	237